

CALL FOR PAPERS AND PARTICIPANTS

The International Forum on the US and China—What They Can Learn from Each Other
November 12-15, 2018, Fort Wayne, Indiana and Los Angeles, California
Deadline for manuscript submission: October 26, 2018

CONFERENCE OUTLINE

The International Forum on the US and China—What They Can Learn from Each Other is organized by Purdue University Fort Wayne, Indiana, Hebei Academy of Social Sciences, China, University of the West, Los Angeles, Chung Yuan University, Taiwan, East China Jiaotong University, China, and the Association for Chinese Management Educators (ACME), USA. The goal of this international conference is to provide a forum for scholars from the US, China and other places to exchange information and ideas on how the US and China can improve its relationship and particularly how each can learn from the one another's perspectives.

The conference will be held on Monday, November 12, 2018 at Purdue University Fort Wayne, Indiana; and on Thursday, November 15, 2018 participants will move to the University of the West, Los Angeles. There will be paper presentations, keynote speeches and group discussions on relevant topics in both places.
